P2P Grid computing seeks the convergence of Grid and P2P technologies. De-ploying a P2P Grid middleware on a set of computers enables an organization to automatically barter computing time with other Internet-connected organizations. Such P2P exchanges of computing time enable individual Peers, i.e. organizations,

Systematic Cooperation in P2P Grids - ULiege

In this paper we propose a peer-to-peer (P2P) grid comprising resources such as relatively static clients, high-end resources and a dynamic collection of multiple P2P subsystems. We investigate the architecture of the messaging and event service that will support such a hybrid environment.

Designing a decentralized but efficient Grid information service is a significant strand of research, with many researches demonstrating the use of peer-to-peer (P2P) models and techniques as an effective alternative to centralized and hierarchical solutions [1].
