Snowmaking is the production of snow by forcing water and pressurized air through a "snow gun," also known as a "snow cannon." Snowmaking is mainly used at ski resorts to supplement natural snow. This allows ski resorts to improve the reliability of their snow cover and to extend their ski seasons from late autumn to early spring.

This is the momentary frequency, which varies all the time, according to load and generating factors. For example, when people wake up, demand increases, and to meet the extra demands, the suppliers crank up their machinery to deliver more current, but this also has the effect of increasing the frequency momentarily. To compensate for this, the suppliers manage the frequency over the long term ...
